Year 7 READING HOMEWORK : The Value of Drama LC1

Drama is more than just putting on costumes and pretending to be someone else—it's a fun and powerful way to learn about ourselves, others, and the world. Whether you're acting in a school play, watching a movie, or telling a story with friends, drama has many important benefits.

First, drama helps us understand feelings, both our own and other people's. When we watch or act out different characters, we get to see how they feel and why they act the way they do. This helps us become kinder and more thoughtful, because we learn what it's like to be in someone else's shoes. For example, acting as a character who is scared or sad makes us think about how others feel in real life when they go through tough times.

Drama is also a great way to be creative! You get to use your imagination to bring characters and stories to life. Whether you're pretending to be a superhero, a historical figure, or an animal, drama lets you explore new ideas and possibilities. It's a place where there are no wrong answers, just creative choices that make a story interesting.

Another important thing about drama is that it helps build confidence. Standing on stage or performing in front of others might seem scary at first, but with practice, you become more comfortable speaking in front of a crowd. This can help you in school when you need to present projects or answer questions in class. Drama also teaches teamwork because when you're in a play, you must work closely with others, listen, and cooperate to make the story come to life.

Finally, drama shows us different cultures and traditions. Plays and stories from around the world teach us about how people live, their beliefs, and what's important to them. This helps us appreciate different ways of life and makes the world feel like a bigger, more interesting place.

In short, drama is valuable because it teaches us empathy, helps us be creative, builds confidence, and connects us to other cultures. Plus, it's a lot of fun! Whether you're watching or acting, drama is a special way to learn and grow.
